PRODUCT PLAYBOOK TO SALES PLAYBOOK MAPPING

Product Messaging Playbook Section	How They Connect	Sales Playbook Sections	When Used in Sales/Marketing Process
Understanding your market (TAM, Market Segmentation)	Marketing identifies hospital segments by size and specialty; Sales uses this to prioritise territories and account targets	Company Information (Strategy, Mission, Roles, Organisation)	Quarterly territory planning, annual budget allocation, new market entry planning
Defining your customer (Stakeholder Mapping, ICP, CIPSS Analysis, Problem Mapping)	Marketing builds clinical user profiles; Sales transforms these into conversation guides for different roles (e.g., surgeon vs. procurement)	Identify Target Personas	Pre-call planning, account mapping sessions, stakeholder identification before tenders
Defining your product value (Feature Hierarchy/Kano Model, Features and Benefits, Value Proposition)	Marketing creates value statements; Sales translates these into ROI calculators and comparison charts for customer conversations	Products and Pricing	Initial customer presentations, proposal development, pricing discussions, tender responses
Aligning with stakeholders (Stakeholder Benefit Mapping, Benefit, Hierarchy, Value Propositions)	Marketing maps key benefits by stakeholder, Sales uses these to customise pitch decks for different decision-makers	Messaging (Scripts, Objection Handling)	Preparing for multi-stakeholder meetings, overcoming objections during sales process, clinical committee presentations
Regulatory foundation (Claims Matrix)	Marketing establishes approved claims with evidence; Sales incorporates these exact phrases into call scripts and proposals	Ethical Practices	Creating sales materials, responding to clinical questions, developing promotional materials, documentation for compliance reviews
Go-to-market strategy (Marketing Positioning, Messaging Matrix)	Marketing develops competitive positioning; Sales operationalises this into step-by-step engagement process and discovery questions	Define Your Sales Methodology. Explain Your Sales Process	Sales training, competitive situations, developing account strategies, qualification discussions
Product storytelling (Origin Story, Vision Design, Mission, Approach, The Why)	Marketing crafts core narratives; Sales personalises these stories with relevant examples for each customer situation	Customer Journey	Opening customer conversations, building emotional connection, post-sale implementation, training end users, creating customer champions
